The Loudoun Spring Farm Tour is This Weekend!

Dear Catoctin residents,

The 2023 Loudoun Farm Fall Tour is happening this Saturday and Sunday, May 20 & 21. This year we have 40+ different farm stops on the tour, which grow everything from honey, lavender, and gourmet mushrooms to alpaca wool, grass-fed bacon, and fresh vegetables.

The Spring Farm Tour is open to everyone. You don't need to buy tickets or register in advance, although you would make our Economic Development team very happy if you'd sign up for their Farm Tour emails. Some stops will have special activities that they charge a fee for. And of course, everyone is welcome to buy some great Loudoun-sourced produce to take home with them.

More About This Year's Spring Tour

The Farm Tour organizers have put together this printable brochure that explains what you can expect on this year's Spring Tour. They've also organized a contest that will give two lucky participants a VIP getaway experience in Western Loudoun. You can find out all about the contest and more on the Farm Tour's website.

For your convenience, I've put together the main list of farm stops on this year's Spring Tour, and each name is linked straight to that farm's website:

On a final note, the Farm Tour organizers are often asked, "Can I take photos of the farms that I visit?" The answer is yes. Please feel free to take as many photos of these wonderful farms as you like. They'd be even happier if you decided to share those photos online, especially if you used the hashtag #LoudounFarmTour.

I hope you're able to come out this weekend and spend time enjoying Loudoun's remarkable farms, and I'll look forward to seeing the photos that get posted.
